Gardens of goodness

Goldfinches are brightly coloured little birds that can be seen all year round. Look out for them in our gardens feeding on teasels and thistles.

Incredible insects

Peacock butterflies can be seen in our meadows in April after hibernation and then again in late July once the summer's caterpillars have pupated.

Watery wonders

Keep a look out for frogs in the pond and in the woods, where they hide in damp, shady spots. Don't forget to check the pond for tadpoles in early summer.

What's in the wood?

Devil's coach horse beetles are active at night when they come out to feed. During the day they can be found hiding under dead wood or stones.
